

How we take doorhash to the next level.

Five highest-leverage moves to leap past Mango Cannabis and Top Crop. Ranked by impact-to-effort. Excludes the obvious — photography, more cities.

01

Strain library — programmatic SEO Medium effort

One template + Dutchie data auto-generates 100+ strain pages with terpene profiles, lineage, and effects. Each one ranks for searches like "blue dream las cruces" or "tropic thunder strain." This is how Top Crop owns NM SEO today — we leapfrog them with better page design.

02

Provenance receipt — the seed-to-door killer Medium effort

Every flower order ships with a digital receipt: Lot #DV-04-26 · Harvested 12 days ago · Hand-trimmed by Maria · Cured 21 days. Printable, shareable. Nobody else can do this because nobody else owns their farm. The whole Don Verde wedge made tangible.

03

Strain finder quiz Low effort

"How do you want to feel?" — 4 to 5 questions deliver a personalized cart of 6 products. Captures email, segments customers, addictive on social. Top Crop is a price wall; doorhash becomes a concierge.

04

Live delivery tracker (Domino's, but for weed) High effort

Post-checkout: "Marco picked up your order at 4:32, ETA 18 min." Map view, driver photo, real-time updates. Goes viral on social. Mango has an app for this — we'd ship it on the open web with no install required.

05

SMS automation (Klaviyo or Postscript) Low effort

Cannabis-friendly SMS provider running flows: abandoned cart, drop alerts, restock notifications, birthday. Repeat order rate roughly 2x at cannabis brands that run this well. Highest revenue lift per dollar — period.
